

Susan Fae on teaching Art

I believe that everyone is an artist.

Everyone can transpose a thought into a; drawing, painting or sculpture, it's the level of confidence a person has that makes the art a completed project. Through practice and experiment an artist builds knowledge and ideas of what is possible.

Learning the variety of tools in the trade such as; pencils HB through to B8, or gum erasers to blenders, brushes; round, flat or fan and carving tools v shaped to U shape will inspire a desire for more. Then apply these tools to mediums; paper, canvas, and linoleum. Again all have a wide range of varying grades and textures. The options in learning art are that you can work alone or collaborate with other artists, or surround yourself with likeminded people.
